As a shareholder at Polsinelli Shughart P.C., Matt uses his extensive litigation expertise to advocate for clients in a wide range of complex commercial and business litigation, including shareholder derivative actions, antitrust claims, appeals, mediation, arbitration, partnership disputes, class actions, contract disputes, product liability claims, and fiduciary litigation. His clients range from start-up companies, to closely-held and family-owned businesses of every size, to publicly traded companies. He has represented shareholders, officers, directors, and corporations in disputes relating to fiduciary and corporate governance issues.

Matt also use his background in antitrust law to represent and advise clients on numerous competition issues involving pricing policies, collaboration among competitors, exclusive dealer relationships, restraints of trade, and dealer and franchisee termination.

When not spending time with his wife and daughter, Matt enjoys playing chess and squash.
